overview of content management systems

- designed to simplify maintenance of web sites
- makes sharing of web-site maintenance easier
- there are different types of CMS's
- we'll look at three examples (blogging, portal, e-commerce)
- they are powerful — but you don't have to use all the features!
- underlying structure is separated from how the site looks
- all of our examples are open source
- back-end is typically based on mySQL and PHP (but you don't have to know about these in order to use these CMS's)
- download or view these and many, many others at:
<http://www.opensourcecms.org>

typical components

- admin (administrative area)
- users and groups
- layout (design): templates or skins and style sheets
- basic content
- additional content: modules or extensions or plug-ins
- links
- other components are specialized for the type of CMS

cms made simple (1)

The screenshot shows the CMS Made Simple Administration Console at the URL <http://146.245.249.246/cms/>. The interface has a dark blue header bar with the CMS logo and navigation links: Main, Content, Layout, Users & Groups, Extensions, Site Admin, View Site, and Logout. Below the header is a sidebar with a tree menu and a 'New Tools' button. The main content area contains several tabs with sub-links: Content (Pages, File Manager, Images Manager, News), Layout (Skins, Templates, Stylesheets, HTML Blobs), Users & Groups (Users, Groups, Group Assignments, Group Permissions), Extensions (Modules, Tags, User-defined Tags, TinyMCE), Site Admin (Administration Functions, Subsites: User Preferences, Global Settings, Manage Bookmarks, Admin Log), and View Site. At the bottom, there is a 'Logout' button and a footer note: 'CMS Made Simple is free software released under the General Public Licence.'

cms made simple (5)

- modules
 - RSS
 - * module for displaying news feeds from other sites on your site
 - * feeds can be cached so they aren't downloaded with every page refresh
 - * inserted using a module tag:

{cms_module module="rss"
    url="http://download.freshmeat.net/backend/fm-releases.rdf" numbertoshow="5"}
```
 - News
 - * module for displaying news events on your site
 - * similar to a blog, but with more features
 - * inserted using a module tag:

{cms_module module="news" number="5" category="beer"}
```

wordpress (1)

<http://146.245.249.246/wordpress/>

The screenshot shows the WordPress dashboard. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links for Write, Home, Links, Prevention, Pages, Comments, Options, and Log out (Administrator). Below the navigation is a sidebar titled "Dashboard" which includes links for "WordPress News" (with a note about a vulnerability in the PIZZAZZ! theme), "Don't Panic! WordPress Is Secure" (a day ago), and "There's a new version of a plugin which has a vulnerability in the PIZZAZZ! theme to spread a computer virus. Since this is a security issue, we're going to do our best to fix it quickly. That means that you should update your theme as soon as possible." There's also a link to "Matt's Recent Posts". On the right side, there's a "Latest Activity" section showing posts by Matt Mullenweg and a "Blog Stats" section showing current post and comment counts. At the bottom, there's a "WordPress" footer with links for Forum, Support, and Feedback.
